1. Determine whether to debrief an offeror.	Only debrief an offeror if the firm submits a written request.
	<ul> <li>An offeror must be debriefed if the firm submits a written request for debriefing within three days of receiving notice that the firm was excluded from the competitive range or received notice of contract award.</li> <li>Consider an untimely request for a debriefing when time and resources permit and the best interest of the Government will be served (e.g., debriefing should lead to improvements in the general quality of proposals).</li> </ul>

3. Schedule debriefings.	Preaward request. Make every effort to debrief the unsuccessful offeror as soon as practicable.
	The Contracting Officer may refuse to provide a preaward debriefing if, for compelling reasons, it is not in the best interests of the Government to conduct a debriefing at that time.
	- The rationale for delaying the debriefing must be documented in the contract file.
	- The debriefing must be provided no later than the time postaward debriefings are provided.
	The debriefing may be delayed at the offeror's request until after award.
	• If the debriefing is delayed until after award, it must include all information normally provided in a postaward debriefing.
	provided in a postaward doorlering.
	Postaward request. To the maximum extent practicable, the postaward debriefing should occur within five days after receipt of the written request. Offerors that requested a postaward debriefing in lieu of a preaward debriefing, or whose debriefing was delayed for compelling reasons beyond contract award, also should also be debriefed within this time period.
4. Determine the method of debriefing.	Debriefings may be done orally, in writing, or by any other method. Tailor the method of debriefing to the acquisition situation. Consider such methods as:
	Telephone conference;
	• Letter;
	• E-mail;
	Videoconference; or Conference at the Government facility.
	The method selected should depend on the complexity of the acquisition situation and the apparent need for discussion.
